

Just a note about your drawing of a System 5 Term. It cannot work with 5 double identities that way you have illustrated it. It is just not possible in experience of any kind, because each higher System must be a consistent elaboration of all the Lower Systems that precede it and yet still be a complete System with all 20 Terms involved in a meaningful matrix of transform sequences. As it happens only triadic relationships between three centers can have mutually closed interfaces that exhibit surfaces. That is why a primary atom has a photon energy shell, an electron and a proton. It is why we have three distinct functional brains that seek a mutual balance. So when the five interfaces are mutually separate three of them are mutually closed as in System 3 while the other two are open and mutually coalesce as in System 2. But the five interfaces although separate have a hierarchical relationship to one another that is defined by a primary Universal Term where all 5 interfaces are stacked together with interface (1) inside (2) inside (3) inside (4) inside (5).

This hierarchical relationship must relate to the structure of human experience in this case as an elaboration of System 4. The Term 9 Universal Hierarchy of System 4 is conscious Idea (1) directs Knowledge (2) implicit in the infrastructure of the nervous system which directs conditioned behavioral Routines (3) of neuro-muscular activity which alters the physical Form (4) of the body in concert with the whole physical universe. All human actions conform to this universal hierarchy. In System 3 the hierarchy was Idea (1) directs Routines (2) which directs Forms (4). In System 4 a Knowledge level (2) is distinguished distinct from Idea (1). In System 5 there is a further distinction of Emotional Knowledge (3) from Conscious Knowledge (2). So the Host Idea (1) remains as one integrated whole that directs Conscious Knowledge (2) that directs Emotional Knowledge (3) that direct Routines (4), that directs the Form (5) of the body in concert with the Universe. This is the primary Universal Hierarchy of System 5 that specifies the relationship of all five interfaces in all 20+ Terms including Expressive and Regenerative Modes. This implicates our autonomic nervous systems distinct from our somatic nervous system.

So when the five interfaces are separate the only way that they can consistently relate is if (3), (4) and (5) form a mutually closed triad while (1) and (2) coalesce as one such that they relate from within each of the three closed interfaces. Because of the double identity relationships that are only possible in triads this generates three mutually closed virtual images relating emotional or spiritual virtual identity to virtual routines and virtual form. In other words a virtual reality is perceived distinct from the physical reality that we usually believe we are living in. But the fact remains that our sensory perception of the outside world is in fact a virtual reconstruction by our nervous system that mirrors the outside world from the unique perspective of each of us. This is a biological fact.

To sum up System 5 is a major challenge because it must relate to the structure of the human nervous system as well as to our sensory experience of the world around us. This is a very sketchy outline. I will get back to you later on points in your email.

This is a lot to think about so have patience.

Best regards,
Bob
